

Anarchy Degrees

What are Anarchy Degrees?

An anarchist way to make a new resolution.

This section of the guide is a self-assessment tool designed to help those in the network see one way of mapping out the options they have when it comes to unplugging themselves from the coercive system.

For people who value their lives in the cities, we have many innovations for how one can achieve their goals without changing every single aspect of their lives.

The main question we are focused on is: Are you living your life in a way that would eventually lead to the abolishment of the slavery of government?

What you are creating in reality is what you spend your attention and your time on.

Every action you take, take it in a way that you would like to see repeated 1000 times over. If you see a slight change you can make that would have a big effect if 1000 people did it 1000 times, integrate that into your lifestyle.

Or take it further. If you get to live 100,000 lives how you are today, how you have positioned yourself in relation to ending slavery? If there were 1000 people doing exactly what you are doing right now, would that end slavery?

Further yet, in 1000 lifetimes of living your ACTUAL dream, would slavery be ended? For example, if your dream is to live in an intentional community or live off-grid on your own, how is that behavior creating greater freedom for more people?

If you are wondering why this question is important, then ask yourself if living in a world freed from the slavery of government would be preferable to a world where only you and your close family was more free only in your private life and property.

This question highlights the fact that there is no way that heightening slavery in the general public would not negatively affect any freedom found from an escape plan that does not also account for the creation of more freedom in the world..

include actions that do not manifest freedom outside of your immediate vicinity. If not, what innovations will help expedite...think of ways to be farther along. No judgment on where you are currently. Just what is your plan.

We are encouraging people to judge themselves on a number of different aspects in their life. We want them to choose a number of specializations or arenas or areas of interest. Do you want them to choose between five and 100 specialties and do a self assessment on one of the many ranking systems within each specialty.

This creates a graph resembling a web on which they are spending their energy. We can all look to where the results of our energy leaves.

If our energy is being put towards endeavors that do not expect lasting results in our lives, we need to be presented with options that better suit our needs and desires. Most people don't have a way to do the exact calling they feel they are here to cheat, most not even Louis to what they could imagine would be the most effective use of their time and energy to connect to goals that they are looking for.

Choose Your Areas

You can formulate an achievement map by choosing five or more traits that you want to work to develop at this time. You can choose these yourself as they will not affect the self-rankings. There is a list at the end of this pamphlet of words if you want more ideas.

Here are some we like:

Trust
Spiritual Growth

Networking
Wealth

Relationships
Resiliency

The next step is to look at the available ranking systems and see if you're on the map of any that you see as relating to your 5 words. For example:

Individual Commerce Degree 2
Individual Domicile Degree 3
Domicile Outreach Degree 4

Now, for each of your 5 words choose 3 more achievements from any ranking systems that relate to that word. Choose achievements that you are excited to reach. Then, order them in what seems to you like a loose logical progression. For example:

Networking Goals:

1. Actively works to bring awareness of real solutions to others
2. Promotes anarchist meetups and reminds people.
3. Employs another anarchist

Use these ordered lists of goals to create your web, noting what level you are starting from as well as what level you are hoping to achieve.
