

Enter here:

Are you an anarchist?

If so, you can start

here

and don't need to read the rest of this page.

Are you not an anarchist?

Here are some definitions of the term "anarchist":

- Anyone who does not support the existence of coercive government.
- You think there should be no legal means to commit aggression against the person or property of others.
- Anyone who adheres to the non-aggression principle consistently and without giving exceptions to some groups [in particular, the groups often referred to as "government"]
- Anyone who thinks that all forms of human interaction should be voluntary and directly consensual, and that the only just use of force is defensive force, or force used to defend the self or their property.
- You recognize that no individual has a higher claim of ownership over you or your life than you do, and oppose the use of force or threats against you to compel you to do as you are told, even if you're not harming others or their property.

