Network Hosts

The quickest way to completely remove yourself from your current life or the restrictions therein is to sign up for a visit with an agorist host. Because our network employs Anarchy Plus, Agorist Hosts provide a particular type of visit because it is also an entryway into the next realm. You can choose your rate of involvement. After a trial period at a property, your application may be accepted to join a network host environment.

Network hosts agree on a set period where they will open a section of their property or home to a guest with the intent of helping that person find a better place in the network - be that through finding a new living situation, job, or other personal development.

Network hosts are not trying to get labor out of individuals. Their interest lies in introducing people to anarchy and the nonaggression principle while providing them with an opportunity that is consistent with what they desire.

A Network Host does not desire only to arrange work trade situations but to direct people into the network and into associations.

Network Hosts may have a property they include in their hosting or they may meet with people at other spaces, like the caravan, etc.

You can think of Agorist Guides as what woofing should be combined with an introduction to anarchy - all of which lets you into another Network of people who are more private.
